

JANKA SPLASHED

COLLECTION
JAN KATH

DESIGNER
JAN KATH

DESCRIPTION

It would be difficult to surpass the opulence of this design. Magnificent roses and lavish floral wreaths form the basic pattern of the carpet. The petaled motifs are reminiscent of the traditional shawls and headscarves still worn by old Russian women in rural areas to this day. The collection is also inspired by carpets made in Karabakh and other provinces in Southern Russia around 1900. The patterns are created using rich, bright colours of Tibetan highland wool and Chinese silk, making each final product a unique and emotionally powerful piece of art. These carpets dictate the character of the space they are in and create a focal point of interest.
