Born in 1927 in Paris, Pierre Paulin began in the 1950s with numerous works for Publishers. In 1972 he brings modernity to the Elysée with the President Pompidou, then creates all the furniture of the office of F. Mitterrand and renovates the dining room for J. Chirac. At the same time, he worked on industrial projects (Calor, Allibert, Stamp), corporate images (Air France) and set up train stations (Gare de Lyon, Gare de Versailles Rive Gauche). His furniture is present in many museums around the world. In 2018, Ozone launched the range of M101 chandeliers designed by Pierre Paulin for the Maison de la radio in Paris in 1964.
